CHINA ANTICIPATES COERCION DESPITE TALK OF TRUCE

Peiping, July 12.

一拜禮 號二十月七英港香

Reports of the cessation of Sino-Japanese hostilities and a settlement of the differences which precipitated them, are now shown to have been previous.

Hostilities were resumed during the night and heavy gunfire is clearly audible in Peiping in the early hours of this morning.

Japanese reports state the scene of the fighting is now only six miles to the west of Peiping, where there are hundreds of foreign residents.

Tokyo, July 12.

Alleged

Only two hours before Peiping heard the sounds of | renewed battle, Tientsin despatches had quoted the Japanese military headquarters there as stating, in a communique, that the Lukouchiao incident had been settled. The Chinese, said the communique, had agreed to withdraw troops from Lukouchiao and surrounding areas and to apologise officially to the Japanese. It was stated that they would punish the officers responsible for the outbreak of fighting, control the anti-Japanese movement and co-operate with the Japanese in the suppression of communism. It now appears this statement was without foundation.—Reuter.

MENTIONED NO SETTLEMENT

Nanking, July 12. Colonel Chin Teh-chun, mayor of Peiping, telephoned to General Sung Cheh-yuan's representative here from Peiping at 6 p.m. last night, but made no mention of the reported Sino-Japanese settlement.

However, acording to Peiping reports, arriving later, Colonel Chin announced that an agreement had been reached at 8 p.m., whereby each side expressed its regret for the casualties suffered by the other and agreed to work out a

There had been no demands made ! by either side, the Chinese report added, in contradiction of the Japanese communique from Tientsin. It was announced, simultaneously, that the main force of Japas e had been withdrawn during the late afternoon towards Fengiai and that the Chinese continued to guard the Marco Polo Bridge and other Pelping approaches.

DEMOBILISATION AGREED TO

The Central Press correspondent in Pelping states the Chinese and Japanese verbally agreed "to unconditional demobilisation of Chinese and Japanese troops which participated in the Lukouchiao incident." However, the message suggested that the rapid increase of Japanese reinforcements "testifies to Japah's intention of coercing the Chinese authorities into submission.-United Press.

Bananas Better Health

TEVER eat a green banana unless (a) you cook it first, or (b) you are well seasoned green apples, green gooseberries, green plums, fact, are pretty green yourself.

Before eating, examine your banana. Has it a green tip? Then spurn it. Is it yellow? Demand a few brown spots. Is it golden and bespeckled with brown?—you have your perfect banana.

Such a banana as this has lost its starchiness; it has unbent; it is, as far as the digestion goes, a straight banana. So never malign it. Speak gently and lovingly of the paragon of fruits, for the starch in the green banana turns to glucose in your ripened specimen.

To be more exact, the ripe banana contains 7.1 per cent. of reducing sugars, 11.1 per cent. of non-reducing sugars, 75 per cent. mois-ture, a little fat, a little protein, a little starch, a spattering of vitamins A. B, and C, nicely rounded off by calcium, magnesium, phosphorus, iron, and copper. There you have the situation in a banana skin.

So no wonder perfect mealseekers often hit on a banana and a glass of milk. The natural glucose gives energy.

Known in History

DUT the banana is no modern fad. D Its grand Latin name (banana is African) means "fruit of the wise men." Indian legend says sages of long ago rested in the shade of the banana tree and built up physical and mental energy eating the fruit. But banana truth is stranger than banana fiction. The soldiers of Alexander the Great ate bananas in India in 327 B.C., even if we did consider them an exotic and expensive luxury here forty years ago.

Then bananas made history by travelling as dried roots to Guinea, to the Canaries, to the West Indies, to Jamalca with settlers and missionaries.

Their present position (as far as we are concerned) is that one firm alone imports more than 40,000,000 bananas a week into this country.

THERE are not 40,000,000 ways L of cooking bananas, nor is there space to write down the few hundred methods that do exist. Here are a couple of suggestions:-Remember that all the time banana time. There are ways of preparing the fruit to suit every age and hour. Bananas are baby's first solid fruit warmed, a little, well mashed, and mixed with creamy

INSTRUCTION

One amendment, moved by Mr. W. A. Burke (Lab.; Burnley), prohibited the employment at any machine of any young person unless he had been fully, instructed in the dangers. Under the Bill a similar precaution is applied to machines listed as dangerous by the Home Secretary.

Miss Wilkinson (Lab., Jarrow) thought the chief difficulty arose from older people becoming so ac-customed to dangerous machines that they saw no danger in them and did not exercise enough vigilance over young persons who were unaccustomed to them.

Replying, Mr. Geoffrey Lloyd (Under-Secretary, Home Office) claimed that the powers in the Bill for ensuring the safety of young persons were in their most effective form and he could assure the House that the Home Secretary intended to use those powers to the full.

ASSOCIATION CHRISTS TEACHING

Preaching at St. John's Cathedral yesterday, the Rev. H. W. Balnes

REV. BAINES ON

There are to-day two reasons beside those I mentioned last Sunday which put people off taking the teaching of Jesus seriously as a guide for daily life. First, people say, He demanded a standard of perfection impossible for a man living in the world, Secondly, His teaching required such an absolute renunciation of the world and its rewards as no man could face who took life on earth seriously. So far as the first point goes, it may safely be said that it is for the most part an argument used by those who wish (and by al of us who wish at some time) to escape from the full burden Christ's demands. The line thought is this; if you translate the Sermon on the Mount into a code of laws or even a moral code for everyday conduct you will produce chaos. Confusion would result from compelling men to follow a law to give Him that asks you, or never to seven. Therefore, they reason, it is unpractical advice. But that is only if Christ was laying down laws or making demands. And this is precisely what He was not doing. He was showing the way of life of His Kingdom and the spirit in which it would be lived, and He was making an offer, not a demand, of Grace by which to live it. "Be ye perfect" has not the effect upon you of a law, but it has always the inspiration of battle is thickest.

But the second objection to the relevance of Christ's teaching is more serious. If it be true, that Christ gave no immediate practical teaching about marriage or politics or society, and if, further, you pay attention to His commands to detach yourself from family claims, from hopes of wealth or comfort if the Cross of self-denial and other-worldliness is idual Christian or the Church as a qu your symbol, what practical applica- whole is so deeply identified, even tion can His teaching have if you for- passively with the status quo and its sake the world you cannot have a values that it can not stand aside, message for it. It you hold a com- criticise and redeem-there is tragemission of enquiry into the working dy. Equally there is tragedy if from of some association or the conduct despair or disdain we keep out of of some person, and never trouble to politics or social work in order not share the conditions of life under to sully our own hands. We cannot which your subject must work, work in that way. It is no more nobody will listen to what you have possible to Christianise politics by to say. Interesting, they would say haughty aloofness than it is to of your findings, but beside the spiritualise marriage by shrinking

Incontestable Authority

We can at once dispose of the charge of indifference in the case of do anything lasting for it. Yet, in Jesus. Whatever He said or left many ways the more ardently he loves it the blinder he will be to its loves and loves loves and loves loves he will be to its loves and loves loves loves loves and loves lov Man among men, knowing human life from inside, He spoke with First Prize: $45 Cash, donated by unique and incontestable authority and not as the Scribes. It is that who grow more remote from Monday morning and Saturday night lives by the will of God. Again it humanity the higher they soar in is the same detachment that is the prescription for the world's maladies. | condition of health. graphic Goods, valued $10, donated Indeed Jesus was necused of being gluttonous and a wine bidder, friend of Publicans and sinners: people looked askance at the company He kept. He was not uscetic in the common sense of the word, although He lived simply and sat lightly to physical comfort. He never disapproved of marriage. No if Christ bade men follow Him it was not out of the world. Yet there remains the ignoring of the social issues of His day and His indifference to the loyalties and values which dominated His fellows. There is no doubt of that. The most prominent element in Christ's teaching was His reiterated extreme demand for renunication, or detachment from the normal interests and claims society. And this teaching is enforced for anybody who realises how blessedly quick He was, in life and His parables, to recognise the good In common men, their family life and relations, and in their occupations. He saw goodness where most of us would have noticed nothing. It is not that in the building of His Kingdom Jesus used or expected new material-humanity was good enough for Him-but He did invent a new design of building, aspiring to new ambitions. Without compromise He mocked, taught, won men from slavery to their old design

No where is this more clear than in His over-turning of the old standards of respectability. If a Christian is one who follows Christ he will certainly find himself making an absolute refusal to recognise the distinction of respectable from disreputable sins. Fornication or theft mercifulness, contempt, salfishness. Not that He palliates sensual sin. His Morning Post are not permitted to words when He speaks of it are penetrating and severe. But He reas less hardening than respectable competitors on application at the harlots go into the Kingdom of Telegraph offices within seven days. Henven before you." And He treats the whole motive of seeking the applause of our fellows with contempt and as a supreme obstacle to faith. So you will expect to find a certain unconventionality in the Christian's moral judgment. Not for him is it to be the slave of fashion nor doped by the desire for approval.

He has about him that independence which belongs to those who are detached from the world's values though living in the heart of it. He thas been called out, to become a mendicant-friar in spirit if not in body; dependant only on God and His ambitions. He is in the world but not of it; its lover but not its slave.

He did not live in the world of claims and counterclaims, of rights and privileges which bind most of us. He was the new morality. Living without reserve among men and shrinking, from none of the consequences of that resolve. He was yet utterly free from worldly standards and values and mental habits. Always he brought the freshalight of God. No life was too low, no conditions too common for Him to enter; no standards or codes were so venerable that He dared not oppose them. But here is no feckless nihilist preaching, revolution for revolution sake. The meaning of His doctrine of renunciation is that it can be achieved only by devotion and attachment to God: And we know it. Not one of us would not give all we have got to possess that unreserved generous-humanity of His and to be free with His liberty a disciple of the absolute love of God instead of struggling to keep the average standards of human laws. So let us hear again "Lay not up for yourselves treasures on earth; where moth and rust doth corrupt and thieves break through and steal; but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven-God's treasures. Witness fell to the ground in a faint, but was pulled towards Wing On Street by defendant, who accused witness of owing defendant's master the sum of $20.60. Witness admitted owing this sum, which was for goods obtained on credit, but maintained he had permission from defendant's master to defer payment until all the goods had been sold. "Fighting Attitude"

Defendant denied he had struck complainant. Complainant owed defendant's master money, and defendant was responsible for collecting the money. He had asked complainant for payment on several occasions, but had always been put off. On July 1, he met complainant, and asked him to go along to his shop in Wing On Street to pay the debt, but complainant began pulling off his jacket and adopted a fighting attitude. Complainant tried to hit defendant, who evaded the blows by giving complainant a push, which sent him to the ground. Defendant was himself struck by complainant's fokis. He had no idea why complainant had to go to hospital. His Worship remarked that complainant appeared to be a very timid man, was smaller than defendant, and very unlikely to pull off his jacket and strike defendant. Defendant was convicted assault, and fined $20. Detective-Sergeant T. Pilkington

(By Achilles)

NEXT SEASON

Leyton F.C.'s hunt for a new ground on which to play their matches next season came to a dramatio close recently when it was announced that Walthamstow Avenue had come forward with an offer to allow their local Athenian League rivals to share their headquarters.

Having been given only until last night to report to the Athenian League committee that they had a ground available, Leyton were only too ready to accept Walthamstow's offer. Failure to have given such notification would almost certainly have meant their exclusion from the League-and probably the end of the Leyton's quest for a new home began at the close of last season, when it was announced that the landlords of their Osborne Road headquarters had leased the ground to Clapton Orient F.C. A project to secure the Hore and Hounds ground at Lea Bridge fell through because the owners of this property were not prepared to go to the great expense of bringing the condition of the ground up to the required standard.

Walthamstow Avenue, in the new arrangement, will have preference of choice for home cup ties. League matches will be played at home on alternative weeks, and the respective reserve teams will play on the Achilles Serre ground, a little distance Mathews (Walthamstow Avenue), away.

> Leyton players are to be given one night a week for the purpose of training at the ground. An official of the Walthamstow club said to me that it would have been a tragedy to have seen Leyton go out of the Athenian League. "We considered it our duty to assist our nearby 'friends in distress' in this under floodlights. ### WHY WORRY ABOUT GOLD?

BY "ECONOMIST"

A T present, there is a so-called gold A scare. The price of gold threatening to fail, and consternation has spread among the producers and holders of the metal. Deep gloom hangs over Johannesburg, and tho money-dealers of Wall Street and Lombard Street scan the future with anxious eyes.

Is there any reason why the man in the street should share this uncasiness? There is none. The prosperity of modern industry is no longer bound up with the price of gold. A shortage or a glut of bullion leaves the course of trade unaffected.

This was not always so. In the nineteenth century, when the currencies of the principal trading nations either consisted of gold or were based on gold a plentiful supply of it was a condition of industrial prosperity. A shortage of gold meant a shortage of money, and a shortage of money meant falling prices. If a smaller quantity of money is to carry through the same number of exchange, then less money must go into each transaction, which is the same as saying that prices go down. And sagging prices have always been the harbinger of industrial depression. The dull trade of the eighteen-seventies, the economic blizzard of the later nineteentwentles, were primarily due to a senrelty of gold.

Under Control

To-day the situation is entirely changed. Over the greater part of the world gold has been demonetised. It no longer serves as the basis of currency. It is difficult to point to any country now which has remained faithful to the gold standard in its old form, and the only place where gold is really bought and sold at a fixed legal price is New York.

Gold therefore no longer affects general prices as it used to do, and no longer sends the trade cycle up and down. The recent movements in the metal need not therefore cause any alarm. Against the influence of fluctuations in the output of the mines, most countries have succeeded in insulating themselves.

Most countries, but not all. And ours is one of the exceptions. It is true that the recent glut of gold will not be allowed to affect us seriously. Our financial authorities will see to that. But it may cause us some slight uncasiness. The truth is that when we went off the gold standard in 1931, we did not get rid of gold altogether. We left it in our economic system in much the same position as the appendix in the human body. That is to say, it ceased to perform useful freeding-ground for disturbing diseases.

A Mistaken Assumption

Thus, though we have 'a paper, currency which is not convertible into gold, the Bank of England is obliged by law to keep a gold reserve against the paper notes, a proceeding which seems entirely opposed to commonsense. Then the Exchange Equalisation Fund, when it buys foreign currencies, exchanges them immediately for gold, under the impression that gold will keep its value better than francs or dollars; an entirely mistaken idea, because if the first year of the Great War. T KNOW too much about children to be senti-Amental about them. I am not deceived by tre angelic look which young Jimmy can put on whenever he likes. He's no angel! Boys and girls have virtues and vices like the rest of us.

They are alarmingly honest in their opinions; they have an immense capacity for enjoyment; they can see through humbug with uncanny clearness; they have inexhaustible energy and unflagging enthusiasm; and they understand adults much better than we imagine.

If children have a right to be alive on a summer morning they have a right to happiness, a right is to a place in the sun, a right to play their games in the open air. But our suburban gardens are too small; the school playgrounds are all locked; the nearest playing fields are a mile away. What can they do but play in the street?

The roads and streets were relatively safe a generation ago. Traffic was less congested and the average speed was not more than six miles an hour.

But children to-day have to play in streets that are as full of danger as the railroads of a busy station. They play a ghastly game of hideand-seek with death at every corner. The weekly toll of casualties is terrible. The most tri-middle of a game. Anyone who has seen a child knocked down and killed by a lorry is haunted by the sight for weeks at least. It is the sort of experience which gives one the most frightful kind of nightmare.

"Yet we read the statistics of road ensualties so regularly that we almost take them for granted. On the face of it we are growing callous. Though what looks like "toughness" is due to lack of imagination.

When a large-scale mas-sacre of innocents takes place, we are appalled. A disastrous fire or a bad train accident with its list of dead and injured moves us to pity and a longing to help.

We all rejoiced when the Habana rescued 4,000 children from slaughter by bombs and bullets a week ago. The idea of young lasses and lads being slain in battle disturbs us so profoundly that we are willing to risk international complications by sending a warship to prevent it.

But British children are being killed and mutilated daily in our own streets; one in this little yillage, two or three in that small town, a dozen or more in a big city. The total for the whole country is staggering. Every war comes to an end sooner or later, and big accidents are mercifully rare, but there is no armistice to the fatalities of the street. The deadly harvest is reaped month after month, year after year. Our greatest danger is lest we should become so accustomed to it that we accept it as inevitable. The next greatest is that we should do nothing beyond talking about it. To be just to ourselves we are genuinely concerned and we keep on trying new methods. But the task is gigantic and there is no simple remedy.

Obviously we cannot hand over all responsibility to the Minister of Transport and the Government; nor to the local authorities and the police; nor to any particular organised body. Everybody will have to join in the movement.

HOLDING an enviable record is the City of Salford. For twelve months no child was killed in its streets. But, as the Chief Constable has pointed out, such a result was obtained by using every resource available, from individual instruction to mass-propaganda;

The training of road-sense in school children by teachers or police officers has certainly accomplished something. An examination of the number of fatalities at given ages proves this pretty conclusively.

Less than one per cent, of children's deaths through road accidents fall during each of the first two years. The figure rises to nearly five per cent, in the third year, to nearly seven per cent, in the fourth, and to the alarming figure of 12 per cent, in the fifth and sixth years.

FTER this, partly owing to greater self-control, A partly to deliberate education, the figure begins to fall: 111, 101, 81, 51, 6, 41, but in the fifteenth year (the schoolleaving age) there is a sudden leap up to 131 per cent, mainly attributable to accidents with bicycles. It will be seen that the "peak" years occur during the infant school period and in the early teens. The "valley" between 8 and 14 is satisfying in a way, but it needs to be widened and deep-drastic must be done about the " peak " years. Infants cannot be expected to take care of themselves. They are high-spirited, impetuous, and fail to realise the dangers which miss them by inches. Many of them are young day-dreamers who walk about oblivious of their surroundings. They are all liable to rush into the road after a ball or in ened. And clearly something pursuit of a friend. Where busy roads have to be crossed an escort is essential. Mothers often take their own (and a neighbour's) children to school. Older brothers and sisters can be commandeered. In the big cities the police are stationed at the danger points.

PECIAL attention should also be given to the young cyclist. When he is learning to ride he is usually cautious enough, but as soon as he feels "at home" on the machine his native recklessness asserts itself, and he pays the grim penalty.

If he survives this danger period, there is another when he gets his first motor-cycle, and still another when he drives a car.

But while we are arguing about the problem the destruction goes on. The situation is already desperate. Apart from the human tragedy of young lives sacrificed to the new gods of civilisation, we cannot afford to pay the

£500,000 SALE OF TOWN

THE ground rents secured upon practically the whole of the town of Lytham St. Annes, Lancashire, which total about £21,-000 a year, have been sold by Mr. Henry Talbot de Vere Clifton, of Lytham Hall.

With this sale a family ownership of many centuries has been severed, for the Ciliton family has owned the land since the Middle Ages. The ground rents are secured upon property which extends for about five and a half miles along the coast almost to the outskirts of Blackpool. Last February, Mr. Clifton made the offer to sell these 999 years ground rents to the lessees, and it out of its jurisdiction. was then announced that this had been accepted by a number of people concerned.

Mr. Clifton instructed Messrs. Knight, Frank, and Rutley, of Loncion, to dispose privately of those that remained, and the sale has now been carried through.

Japanese Demands Refused By China; Further Negotiation Necessary to Avoid War

> PEIPING SUBURBS SHELLED IN EARLY MORNING ENGAGEMENT

> > Shanghai, July 12.

Despite another temporary lull in the fighting around Peiping, the outlook is most uncertain.

Well-informed Chinese sources state that if the Japanese follow the same tactics as they have done in previous incidents, the Chinese authorities are determined to resist to the last man and will not accept humiliating demands from Tokyo.

Chinese military headquarters at Peiping states that fighting to the south-west of Fengtai and east of Changhsintien, ceased at a little after midnight, but there was still sporadic sniping at 1.30 a.m.

Railway authorities state that five carloads of Japanese munitions have arrived at Fengtai and a full trainload of troops is expected shortly. Eight truckloads of fresh men came into the Fengtai area on Sunday.—United Press.

When one thinks of the fact that not millions but milliards of microbes and bacteria are living in a neglected mouth, that is, in a mouth that has not been daily antiseptically cleansed, it seems nothing less than disgusting to allow such distruction to continue in our mouths and teeth.

It is simply incredible that there still exist many educated people who refuse to realise that it is an absolute necessity not only for the preservation of the teeth, but also for the general health, to free their mouth daily from the bacteria which destroy their teeth. Odol arrests most thoroughly and affectively all fermentation and decomposition in the mouth. Everyone who uses Odel regularly every day insures the greatest protection for his teeth and mouth that signific discovery has up to the present time made possible. Odol is daily used by thousands of doctors and dentists themselves.

Says Memorial To Field Marshal Is "Monstrous"

London, June 17. WHILE yesterday Office of Works men, protected by W temporary barriers from the passing traffic, were measuring up the site in the middle of Whitehall where the Earl Haig statue is to be erected for unveiling before the end of this year, Countess Haig, the Field Marshal's widow, was telling the News Chronicle:

"I'm not going to attend the unveiling ceremony. Nothing would drag me there. The statute is monstrous.

"My husband would, I'm sure, not want me to have anything to do with it. The whole style of the thing is wrong—the horse, the figure, the fact that there is no hat.

One amendment, moved by Mr. W. A. Burke (Lab., Burnley), prohibited the employment at any machine of any young person unless he had been fully instructed in the dangers. Under the Bill a similar precoution is applied to machines listed as dangerous by the Home Secretary.

Miss Wilkinson (Lab., Jarrow) thought the chief difficulty arose from older people becoming so accustomed to dangerous machines that they saw no danger in them and did not exercise enough vigilance over young persons who were unaccustomed to them. Replying, Mr. Geoffrey Lloyd (Under-Secretary, Home Office) claimed that the powers in the Bill for ensuring the safety of young persons were in their most effective form and he could assure the House that the Home Secretary intended to use those powers to the full.

M.C.L. WORK IN AUSTRALIA

INTERESTING TALK THIS MORNING

An interesting address on M.C.L. work in Melbourne in particular, and throughout Australia in general, was given to members of the local this morning by Mrs. M. A. Hewison, O.B.E., Hon. Organising Secretary of of the M.C.L. in Australia.

Amongst those present were, Mrs. Forrest, Mrs. G. H. Lakeman, Miss J. Lakeman, Mrs. Shaw, Mrs. F. H. Crapnell, Mrs. E. C. Norris, Mrs. Kelvin Stark, Dr. K. Woo, Mrs. Richardson and Mrs. Dleken.

Introducing Mrs. Hewison, Mrs. T. Hewison, members would be inspired to far greater heights.

COTTAGE BY SEA

the warm welcome extended to her, Aras. Mrs. Hewison sald that the M.C.L in Melbourne, of which she was the Hon. Organising Secretary, was started 47 years ago with the object of ministering to the wants of poor children, by providing clothing, and food. Four years later it was felt that the work was not sufficient, and a "Cottage by the sca" was built near Melbourne for the purpose of further alleviating the sufferings as soon as they were fit to leave To-hing, and R359 Ho Wing-kwan.

GOVERNMENT HELP

The people of Victoria, continued Mrs. Hewison, were generouslyminded, and when £10,000 was required for the new Cottage now towards completion, £7,000 was raised by holding parties and dances and contributions by school-children well as bequests. The remainder of the sum was contributed by the Government.

The League in Melbourne worked unostentatiously and seldom made public appeal for funds. Boys between the ages of four and eight and girls, between four and sixteen were admitted to the Cottage, through recommendations by the hospitals. schools, public health inspectors, and A. Tansley. The speaker then mentioned the work of the M.C.L. in New South Wales, Adelaide and Western Australia, and concluded by saying that her organisation admitted children, irrespective of race or creed. Mrs. King proposed a vote of thanks to Mrs. Hewison, which was heartly acclaimed by those present.

It is not known what ship he is on, but reliable reports have it that he has already left England. It is probable that he will be back in time to assist the C.R.C. in their concluding league matches.

Tsul seems to have had a somewhat disappointing time in Europe. Although he played in the Davis Cup doubles match against New Zealand, and competed in the French Championships as well as in Berlin, he did not play at Wimbledon, scratching from the first round of the southern qualifying tournament. ### WOMAN MAKES ASCOT HISTORY

A brilliant Ascot reached its climax when the Gold Cup, one of the most valuable races of the season, was won by Lady Zia Wernher's four-year-old colt, Precipitation, which started favourite at 2—1 in a field of twelve. To-day's crowd seemed even larger than that of yesterday and the road traffic taxed the resources of the authorities to utmost.

The King and Queen received a great ovation as they drove up the course to the Royal Enclosure and again when they entered the flowerdecked Royal Box.

Lady Zia Wernher is the first woman in the long annals of the race to have bred as well as to have owned a Gold Cup winner, won the race in 1900 with Merman.

BEASLEY'S REVENGE

Pat Beasley, who rode the winner, now had his revenge on Perryman, who beat him on Quashed in a memorable race last year. Beasley was then on Mr. Woodward's Omaha, who was prevented through injury from competing to-day.

The race was a good one, easily though Precipitation won. Sir Abe Bailey's Cecil was a gallant second and last year's winner, Lord Stanley's Quashed, a good third. The two French horses, Le Duc and Cousine, made no show at all.

Fifty aeroplanes, in two groups of 30 and 20, passed over the course just before the fourth race. They flew the full length of the stands. Leyton's quest for a new home began at the close of last season, when it was announced that the landlords of their Osborne Road headquarters had leased the ground to Clapton Orient F.C. A project to secure the Hare and Hounds ground at Lea Bridge fell through because the owners of this property were not prepared to go to the great expense of bringing the condition of the ground up to the required standard.

Holmes's time equalled that of Ralph Metcalph, of America, which stood as a world record until Jesse Owens established new figures at the Berlin Olympiad, E. L. Page, the Blackheath Harrier and Metropolitan policeman, qualified for the final, but, in making a desperate effort to keep with the leaders, he pulled a muscle and he was carried from the track.

Holmes and Osendarp had another thrilling race in the 200 metres final,

The President, Mr. E. G. Butcher who was re-elected, criticised the Rugby Union's attitude in refusing to allow Dorsetshire, Wiltshire and Berkshire to take part in the county championship and said it would be beneficial if the Western Group were increased by two more countles.

Neath Rugby Club made a profit of £107 on last season despite reduced gate receipts. Only two games yielded over £100 gates, namely Lianelly the task and London Welsh on Christ-

WORRY ABOUT GOLD?

BY "ECONOMIST"

T present, there is a so-called gold scare. The price of gold i threatening to fall, and consternation; has spread among the producers and holders of the metal. Deep gloom hangs over - Johannesburg, and the money-dealers of Wall Street and Lombard Street scan the future with anxious eyes.

Is there any reason why the man in the street should share this uneasiness? There is none. The prosperity of modern industry is no longer bound up with the price of gold. A shortage or a glut of bullion leaves the course of trade unaffected.

This was not always so. In the nineteenth century, when the currencies of the principal trading nations either consisted of gold or were based on gold a plentiful supply of it was a condition of industrial prosperity. A shortage of gold meant a shortage of money, and a shortage of money meant falling prices. If a smaller quantity of money is to carry through the same number of exchange, then less money must go into each transaction, which is the same as saying that prices go down. And sagging prices have always been the harbinger of industrial depression. The dull trade of the eighteen-seventies, the economic blizzard of the later nineteentwenties, were primarily due to a scarcity of gold.

Under Control

To-day the situation is entirely changed. Over the greater part of the world gold has been demonetised. It no longer serves as the basis of currency. It is difficult to point to any country now which has remained faithful to the gold standard in its old form, and the only place where gold is really bought and sold at a fixed legal price is New York.

Gold therefore no longer affects general prices as it used to do, and no longer sends the trade cycle up and down. The recent movements in the metal need not therefore cause any alarm. Against the influence of fluctuations in the output of the mines, most countries have succeeded in insulating themselves.

Most countries, but not all. And ours is one of the exceptions. It is true that the recent glut of gold will not be allowed to affect us seriously. Our financial authorities will see to that. But it may cause us some slight uneasiness. The truth is that when we went off the gold standard in 1931, we did not get rid of gold altogether. We left it in our economic system in much the same position as the appendix in the human body. That is to say, it ceased to perform useful freeding-ground for disturbing diseases.

A Mistaken Assumption

Thus, though we have a paper currency which is not convertible into gold, the Bank of England is obliged by law to keep a gold reserve against the paper notes, a proceeding which seems entirely opposed to commonsense. Then the Exchange Equalisation Fund, when it buys foreign currencies, exchanges them immediately for gold, under the impression that gold will keep its value better than francs or dollars; an entirely mistaken idea, because if the first year of the Great War. One day character. supply of gold exceeds the demand, people will probably refer to him The Bright Side as it does at present, then nothing a little enviously as a "self-made The Bright Side will keep its value up.

It is a perfect morning—much too fine to keep the windows shut—but the noise of childish voices is distracting. How can a man write under such condi-

There come occasional moods when I could wish the children in Hanover or Timbuctoo. Why must they always yell so wildly instead of talking quietly, as adults do? Why do they argue so excitedly? Why are they so aggressively

But I know in my heart that these children are far more important than us, older people. Their games matter more than my writing. I give up the attempt and watch them; they are worth watching.

But our suburban gardens are too small; the school playgrounds are all locked; the hearest playing fields are a mile away. What can they do but play in the street?

The roads and streets were relatively safe a generation ago. Traffic was less congested and the average speed was not more than six miles an hour.

But children to-day have to play in streets that are as full of danger as the railroads of a busy station. They play a ghastly game of hideand-seek with death at every corner. The weekly toll of casualties is terrible. The most triumphant death, Southey said, is that of a martyr; the most glorious that of a hero in the hour of victory. But the most tragic of all deaths is surely that of a happy child cut off in the middle of a game;

Anyone who has seen a child knocked down and killed by a lorry is haunted by the sight for weeks at least. It is the sort of experience which gives one the most frightful kind of nightmare.

Yet we read the statistics of road casualties so regularly that we almost take them for granted. On the face of it we are growing callous. Though what looks like. "toughness" is due to lack of imagination.

after month, year after year. Our greatest danger is lest we should become so accustomed to it that we accept it as inevitable. The next greatest is that we should do nothing beyond talking about it. To be just to ourselves we are genuinely concerned and we keep on trying new methods. But the task is gigantic and there is no simple

Obviously we cannot hand over all responsibility to the Minister of Transport and the Government; nor to the local authorities and the police; nor to any particular organised body. Everybody will have to join in the movement.

OLDING an enviable record is the City of L Salford. For .. twelve months no child was killed in its streets. But, as the Chief Constable has pointed out, such a result was obtained by using every resource available, from individual instruction to mass-propaganda.

The training of road-sense in school children by teachers or police officers has certainly accomplished something. An examination of the number of fatalities at given ages proves this pretty conclusively.

Less than one per cent, of children's deaths through road accidents fall during each of the first two years. The figure rises to nearly five per cent. in the third year, to nearly seven per cent. in the fourth, and to the alarming figure of 12 per cent, in the fifth and sixth years.

FFER this, partly owing to greater self-control. " peak " years. Infants cannot be expected to take care of themselves. They are high-spirited, impetuous, and fall to realise the dangers which miss them by inches. Many of them are young day-dreamers who walk about oblivious of their surroundings. They are all liable to rush into the road after a ball or in pursuit of a friend. Where busy roads have to be crossed an escort is essential. Mothers often take their own (and a neighbour's) children to school. Older brothers and sisters can be commandeered. In the big cities the police are stationed at the danger points.

PECIAL attention should also be given to the young cyclist. When he is learning to ride he is usually cautious enough, but as soon as he feels "at home" on the machine his native recklessness asserts itself, and he pays the grim penalty. If he survives this danger period, there is another when he gets his first motor-cycle, and still another when he drives a car.

But while we are arguing about the problem the destruction goes on. The situation is already desperate. Apart from the human tragedy of young lives sacrificed to the new gods of civilisation, we cannot afford to pay the

Macao Demonstrates Its Loyalty

Macao, July 11. "Vive Salazari" and such like expressions of patriotic fervour were heard at noon to-day in Macao when large crowds of prominent officials and local residents gathered outside Government House in a public demonstration of thanksgiving for the preservation of the life of the muchloved Prime Minister of Portugal Dr. Oliveira Salazar, on whose life an attempt was made a few days

This followed a special church service held this morning in the St Domingo Church-which was attended by H.E. the Governor of Macao, Dr. A. Tagmanini Barbosa, the Colonial Secretary, Dr. C. Samplao, the Harbour Master, Commander S. Viera, the Chairman of the Municipal Counell, Lieut. A. Oliviera, and all other leading officials of the Colony.

At the conclusion of the service, crowds followed the Boy Scouts and Girl Guldes and the band of the Salesian School and assembled below the balcony of Governmen House from which H.E. the Governor and other leading officials received the ovation of both Portuguese and Chinese citizens of Macao. Mr. NigsI asked that, in his report His Worship, make mention of the fact that the fugitive .had already been six months in custody. There was also a further point. In 200-3examination of prosecution witnesses, he had hinted a defence on certain decuments. He would therefore like His Worship to make a note that there was a defence, and that such defence was reserved.

It will be recalled that this case, which has been a protracted one, centred round the alleged embezzlement of a sum of 7.112.96 guilders and H.K. $3,290,82 which the fugitive was accused of having misappropriated from the branch of the Wing Fat Firm in Medan.

New York, July 12. New York Giants won a doubleheader from Brooklyn to-day, taking the opener ten to four, and the nightcap five to one. They thus gained in the race for the National League pennant, for the leaders, Chicago Cubs, were not so fortunate.

Philadelphia and Boston divided the day's honours, the Bruins taking a beating in the opener, when Phillies hit 16 times and scored ten to four. But Boston was strong in the finish scoring five to one. Pittsburgh beat Chicago Cubs, the

Von Cramm Leading Touring Party

That Baron Gottfried von Cramm and Henrich Henkel, Germany's leading amateur tennis players, will visit Hongkong early this winter is definitely confirmed by a message from Berlin, dated July 8.

It states that following the German national championships, which start at the end of July and finish early players will make an extensive tour. Included in the party will be Baron von Cramm, Henkel, Dr. Kleinscharoth, and the German woman champion, Fraulein Marie Horn. Dr. Kleinscharoth is not listed in the 1936 national rankings, as far as can be ascertained, but Fraulein Horn has represented Germany at Wimbledon and in numbers of international matches. Among her successes in England is numbered the winning of the Midland Counties title and Welsh doubles in 1932, in which year she was eighth in the World's Ranking

Making Gold Work Toward Stabilisation

United States' Plans Clarified

Washington, July 11. Following a conference of Treasury experts a statement was issued to-day respecting the Sino-American gold and silver transaction.

"The agreement reveals two policies regarding the future of the Government's gold holdings: firstly, to help other nations achieve monetary reform and currency stabilisation for their internal prosperity and the enhancement of international trade; secondly, to convert sterilised gold, now amounting to many millions, to silver. This means the utilisation of 'unwanted gold' which now forms the Government's inactive fund."

This fact, in conjunction with the rise in gold shipping price in London, the decrease in the amount of gold offered for sale, purchase by the Louis, whose team lost twice to French Stabilisation Fund of steriing, convertible into gold reserves, three-to-two victory over the Cubs. argue powerfully against gold price

Lower Deck Too Warm

Ferry Passenger's Excuse

Two cases of persons caught travelling on the Yaumati ferries without payment of fare came before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy this morning.

Inspector R. Shannon, prosecuting, said defendant was seen by Ticket-Inspector L. A. Hurlow, of the ferry company, on the first-class deck of the Man Kung. He did not possess a Kwok Kee, 26-year-old seaman, also denied a similar charge of travelling on the Man Kung on Sunday without paying his fare. He maintained he had bought a first-class ticket but had lost it after getting on board. He offered to pay, but this was not accepted by the ticket collector.

Crown-Sergeant R. J. Clarke told the Court that all the first-class tickets sold for the Man Kung on that particular trip had been checked and found to be correct. No ticket was missing. The tickets on the preceding and following ferry had also been cheeked and found correct. Both cases were adjourned until 11 a.m. on Friday.
